	Parks and Recreation Advisory Board Report Date: January 14, 2026 From: Zac Kocveja, PRCF Deputy Director - Planning and Development Subject: Naming of Parks Administrative Procedure		Agenda Item: 6
---	--	--	---------------------------

Purpose and Recommendation

To request the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board discuss and take action on the staff recommendation to name the park and trailhead located at McKellips and the Loop 202 Freeway (Red Mountain Freeway) to Red Mountain Nature Park.

Background/Discussion

The Naming of Parks Administrative Procedure (Attachment A) states that the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board forwards a recommendation for a park name to City Council for final consideration. The Red Mountain Nature Park is primarily located at McKellips and the Loop 202 Freeway (Red Mountain Freeway). The park parcel boundary is framed on the north side by McKellips Road, the west side by the Loop 202 Freeway, and the east side by private residential development. The southern extents of the park parcel boundary come to a point near the Brown Road and Loop 202 Freeway intersection. The southern portion of the park site is owned by the City of Mesa and the northern portion of the park site is leased by the City from the Bureau of Land Management through a Recreation and Public Purpose lease.

During the community engagement meetings for the 2024 Parks Bond election, the community was encouraged to select a name for the park from a list of potential names or to propose an alternative. There was some community participation, but no one name stood out as being selected. While there was some community participation, no single name emerged as a clear preference. Based on the feedback received, city staff and leadership reviewed naming options and determined that Red Mountain Nature Park was the most appropriate choice due to the park’s proximity to Red Mountain Park and consistency with the naming convention used for the existing park and adjacent ballfields.

Planned park site improvements include a developed trailhead with a designated parking area and trail and pathway signage. Site improvements also include defining and developing natural surface trails throughout the park parcel.

The Red Mountain Nature Park trailhead development project is part of the larger Northeast Trail Project which extends a natural surface trail experience from the Red Mountain Nature Park along a regional stormwater drainage channel, managed by the Flood Control District of Maricopa County, to the north city limits between Power Road and the Las Sendas community.

Alternatives

The Parks and Recreation Advisory Board may vote not to forward the proposed name to Council and instead request additional input into the park naming process.

Fiscal Impact

There will be a financial impact of updating park signs with the new name. This expense can be covered by the department’s infrastructure budget.
